Comment by Alireza Jafarzadeh, Deputy Director, National Council of Resistance of Iran-US Representative office on the current nuclear negotiations in Geneva.
November 8, 2013

"The purpose of any serious deal should be to halt the nuclear weapons program of Iran; Anything short of that, would allow Tehran to complete its nuclear weapons program while getting economic benefits, a double bonus.

"Any serious deal must get the Iranian regime to stop, ship, close, sign, i.e., stop all enrichment related activities, ship out all 20% enriched uranium, close Fordow and Arak sites, and sign the additional protocol and provide full access to all the nuclear sites and personnel.

"Like 2005, a partial freeze will only allow the Iranian regime to complete its nuclear weapons program, while getting major concessions from the west. Supreme leader Khamenei hinted a few days ago that Iran has the option to pull out of any agreements, and described the 2005 freeze as a means to advance the program.

"Nuclear talks, whatever the outcome, should not act as justification to keep silent about the deteriorating human rights violations in Iran and the proxy killings of the Iranian dissidents in Iraq.

"The ruling mullahs only understand the language of strength and decisiveness. It is now time to tighten the sanctions on the Iranian regime."

These materials are being distributed by the National Council of Resistance of Iran-U.S. Representative Office. Additional information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, D.C.

Revelation of a new secret nuclear site in Iran
National Council of Resistance of Iran
Paris, November 18, 2013

Parallel nuclear system of the clerical regime

According to specific information obtained by the Iranian Resistance, the clerical regime is establishing or completing parallel secret and undeclared sites for its nuclear project. What we would like to expose today is another secret, undeclared site.

This information has been compiled and confirmed by multiple intelligence assets of the People's Mojahedin Organization of Iran (PMOI/MEK) inside of Iran. These sources include dozens of sources within the clerical regime, including the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps (IRGC), the Defense Ministry, the Atomic Energy Organization of Iran, the Supreme National Security Council, as well as local organs and eyewitnesses.

This information has been compiled throughout last year. What will be made available deals with some aspects of this system and we are continuing to complete the information as we speak.

Haft-e Tir (7th of Tir) Industries in Isfahan (site 012)

The information that I will divulge today is regarding This site code named 012 It is located at the military zone of the Haft-e Tir Military Industrial Complex near the city of Isfahan.

It is adjacent to Isfahan-Shiraz highway, about 10 kms (six miles) from the town of Mobarekeh.

The site, located in this vast military zone, has been constructed in complete secrecy. In fact, the clerical regime is using this military zone as a cover to conceal the existence of this site.

The work on this project began in 2005 and the construction of the tunnels ended in early 2009. The construction of the facilities began afterwards and has been nearly completed.

Where does Site 012 fit in the nuclear structure

The site 012 belongs to "Organization of Defensive Innovation and Research" (known as SPND based on its Persian acronym). SPND is the nerve center and the headquarters for the design and research on the nuclear weapons program. SPND experts have visited this site and supervised its construction.

The individual in charge of SPND is IRGC Brigadier General Mohsen Fakhrizadeh, the key official in the regime's nuclear weapons program who reports directly to the Defense Minister. The NCRI revealed the identity and function of Fakhrizadeh in 2004. The IAEA has requested to interview Fakhrizadeh for years but the clerical regime has refused access to him.

Address and details of Site 012

This site is located adjacent to Isfahan-Shiraz Highway, 10 km (six miles) from town of Mobarekeh, which is 40 Kms (25 miles) southwest of Isfahan.

Entrance to site 012, is through Haft-e Tir military industry complex. Once inside the military industry complex, the entry checkpoint for Site 012 is located in a boulevard three to four km inside the southern part of the military zone.

Site 012 is located inside a tunnel in a mountainous area in the southern part of Haft-e Tir military Industrial complex. There is no other entrance or exit for this site except going through Haft-e Tir complex. Mountains in three directions surround Site 012.

Very high security for Site 012

Very tight control is exerted on Site 012 to make sure it remains secret. In addition to the Defense Ministry's Counter-intelligence Department, the Iranian Ministry of Intelligence has a robust presence at and directly supervises the Site's security safeguards.

In order to have access to the site, one has to go through four check points in an eight-kilometer distance.

The first two checkpoints are at the entrance of Haft-e Tir complex.

The other two check points are at the entrance of Site 012 and at the entrance of tunnel where the Site is located.

Check points are located at:

1. First inspection: It is conducted by the security of Haft-e Tir military industrial complex
2. Second inspection: It is conducted 600 meters after the first inspection towards the south gate of the Haft-e Tir military industrial complex. At this check point in addition to the security guards for the complex itself, the security guards for Site 012 will require special permit to enter.
3. Third inspection: It is carried out four kms after entering the complex. At this location the special permit for entrance to the Site is checked.
4. Fourth inspection: It is carried out 2.5 kilometers after the third inspection near the entrance to the tunnel. The distance between the fourth checkpoint and the tunnel where the Site is located at is only 500 meters. At this checkpoint, in addition to special permit for passage from the previous check points, the security officer must verbally confirm permission to enter the tunnel.

Specifications of the nuclear research site:

Site 012, is located inside of a tunnel, which is 600 meters (about .4 miles) and contains four galleries.

- Two galleries which are 200 meters long, 12 meters wide, and 18 meters tall.
- One gallery which is 150 meters long, 12 meters wide, and 18 tall.
- One gallery which is 70 meters long, 12 meters wide, and 18 meters high.

Reasons for choosing this location for Site 012:

This location is very suitable for the operations of Site 012. Since Haft-e Tir military industries in Isfahan constitutes a major part of the regime's ammunition production, by using the cover of a conventional military site (normally sealed off from the outside), the work on Site 012 could be protected well and kept a secret.

The general area of Haft-e Tir belongs to the IRGC and is managed by IRGC Brigadier General Aghaiee.

Construction process and companies involved:

The engineering firm of Ghorb Ghaem which belongs to the IRGC and is one of the IRGC's Khatam al-Anbia Garrison companies has been tasked with constructing the Site 012. Khatam al-Anbia Garrison is on the UN Security Council sanctions list.

IRGC Colonel Heydari from Khatam Garrison was the construction manager of Site 012. Colonel Madanizadeh, Deputy Director of Engineering Organization of the Ministry of Defense, was supervising this project.

In the course of the Resistance's probe into this site, our intelligence assets in Khatam Garrison identified the same individuals and officials involved in the construction of Fordow enrichment site as being as directly involved in the construction of Site 012.

The first phase, the construction of the tunnel, was finished in 2009 but the construction of the facilities on the site has continued and is under the verge of completion.

From 2009 to 2012 a number of facilities were constructed around the tunnel, which provide logistics for the main site.

In the first part of 2012, the road leading to the entrance of the tunnel where the site is located was altered by erecting a tall berm to hide the tunnel from a distance to ensure the secrecy of Site 012.

Parallel and alternative system for nuclear program

The clerical regime is in the process of constructing and completing a series of secret sites as parallel and alternative sites for its current nuclear sites. Site 012 is one of them.

Another site of this parallel system is the Ma'dan Sharq. In July, we revealed the information on Ma'dan Sharq which is located in Damavand area, near Tehran.

How you can help

If you like to support the NCRI-US projects and campaign to expose and stop Iran's nuclear weapons program as well as support policy of democratic change in Iran, which is vital for the security and stability of the region, the United States, and the world, you may consider:

- inviting representatives of NCRI-US to speak or testify at various conferences and hearings, or seek media comments and interviews;
- adopting a NCRI-US project and funding it partially or in its entirety; or
- making a one-time contribution to help the NCRI-US with its activities. Make your checks payable to NCRI-US.

Bi-Partisan Congressional Support

National Council of Resistance of Iran has enjoyed extensive bi-partisan support in the Senate and the House over the past three decades.

In a message on June 22, 2013, Senator Carl Levin, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said, "Recently I wrote to Secretary of State Kerry to reiterate the special responsibility that the United States has regarding these residents [of Camp Liberty and Ashraf]. That responsibility stems from the U.S. designation during the Iraq war of the Camp Ashraf residents as protected persons under the Geneva Conventions, and it continues even after the transfer of the Ashraf residents to Camp Liberty to facilitate the resettlement process."

In a joint letter to Secretary Clinton in November 2011, Senators John McCain and Lindsey Graham wrote, "The fact remains that the lives and rights of these [Camp Ashraf residents] unarmed, peaceful civilians, whom the United States vowed to protect, could now be at great risk. The fate of the residents of Camp Ashraf should not be a political or an ideological issue; it is, and should be, a humanitarian issue."

Led by Chairman Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, since 1990s, on several occasions, a bi-partisan majority of the House express support for the NCRI and viewed the coalition and its member organizations as "legitimate resistance."

In February 2013, a bi-partisan congressional delegation went to Paris and held talks with the president-elect of the NCRI, Mrs. Maryam Rajavi and called for the need to change the U.S. policy in order to side with the Iranian people.

About NCRI-US

National Council of Resistance of Iran-U.S. Representative Office (NCRI-US) has been formed as a non-profit US-based organization registered in the District of Columbia as well as with the Department of Justice.

The NCRI-US aims to inform the American public, US Government, Congress, as well as non-governmental organizations, foreign embassies, and the media about Iran, Iraq and the Middle East region. It seeks to promote a policy that would further isolate the Iranian regime and its proxies, as well as reaching out to all Iranian opposition groups, entities, and personalities who are striving for democratic change and the establishment of a secular, democratic, and non-nuclear republic in Iran.

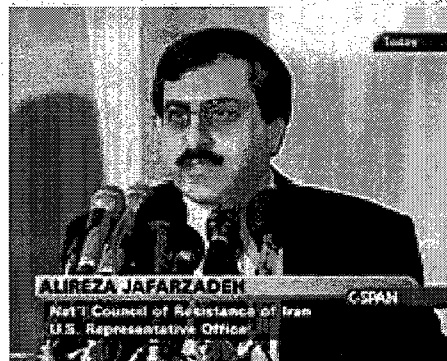

NCRI-US engages in disseminating information about the politico-economic situation in Iran and the Middle East, holds conferences and gatherings, conducts meetings, and engages in media activities. It will respond to inquiries as well as brief the U.S. Government, Congress, media, and the general public. Its activities are focused on issues related to human rights, women's rights, counter-terrorism, non-proliferation, art, and music.

The National Council of Resistance of Iran is a political coalition consisting of some 500 members representing various political, religious, and ethnic constituencies of Iran and acts as the parliament-in-exile. It seeks to establish a democratic, secular, and non-nuclear republic in Iran.

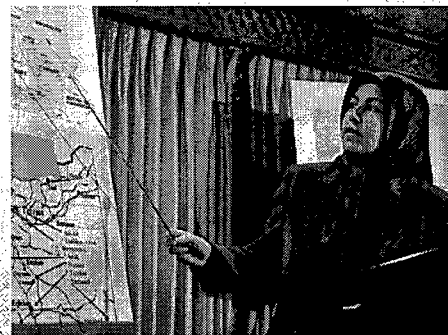

Exposing Regime's Nuclear Threat

In a historic press conference in Washington, DC, on August 14, 2002, the National Council of Resistance of Iran held a press conference, revealing for the first time, the nuclear sites in Natanz and Arak, which were held secret until then. The revelation, triggered for the first time, inspection of the Iranian nuclear sites by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) which has continued to date.

2002 NCRI-US Press Conference on C-Span exposing Natanz nuclear site

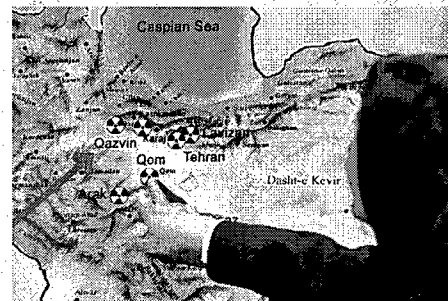

The activities of the NCRI-US were so effective, that the Iranian regime launched an extensive campaign to shut down the NCRI's office in the United States and silence the voice of dissent in Washington. Tehran got its wishes, but a majority of Members of U.S. Congress protested; the U.S. Court of Appeals—DC Circuit got involved and eventually succeeded to restore the voice of the Iranian people. NCRI-US resumed its activities in April 2013.

NCRI-US exposing the Kala Electric site in February 2003 in Washington-DC

In the months after the Natanz revelation, NCRI-US was engaged in a series of press conferences exposing several additional nuclear sites, including Kala Electric in Tehran, Hashtgerd near Karaj, and Lavizan-Shian in the suburb of Tehran.

The NCRI-US has also been engaged in exposing the missile, biological, and chemical program, and the terrorist network of the Iranian regime.

Maryam Rajavi, President-elect of the National Council of Resistance of Iran:
Sanctions force Iranian regime to take one step back in building a nuclear bomb

If the international community fails to implement Security Council resolutions, Khamenei will once again move towards building the bomb through deception and cheating

Mrs. Maryam Rajavi, President-elect of the Iranian Resistance, said the "forced" retreat by the religious dictatorship ruling Iran in its nuclear bomb project during the Geneva talks was a direct result of international sanctions and the Iranian people's widespread opposition to the Supreme Leader's policies which have undermined Iran's national interests. The regime views obtaining nuclear weapons as a strategic guarantee for its survival; its overt and covert nuclear projects have only resulted in greater poverty and destruction of the country's economy, she added.

Mrs. Rajavi welcomed the retreat by clerical regime which was prompted by domestic isolation, international rebuke and sanctions as well as policies and nuclear revelations by the Iranian Resistance during the past three decades.

She added: Since incurable internal crises have severely weakened the Iranian regime, had world powers set aside economic and political considerations and acted more decisively, they could have dismantled the regime's bomb-making program in its entirety during the current negotiations. Thus, in the future, as in the past, the extent of the regime's retreat and abandoning nuclear weapons as well as its compliance with international obligations depend precisely on the degree of decisiveness and firmness of the world community vis-à-vis the regime's evil intentions and its intrinsic deceptiveness.

Mrs. Rajavi warned: The full implementation of Security Council resolutions, particularly the complete halt to uranium enrichment, agreeing to the Additional Protocol, and the IAEA inspectors' unhindered access to suspected nuclear centers and facilities are essential for the regime to abandon nuclear weapons. As such, the first step can be viewed as the beginning of the process of drinking "a chalice of poison" by the regime on the nuclear issue. Any leniency, hesitancy and concessions by the international community will prompt Khamenei to once again move towards manufacturing nuclear weapons through deception and cheating.

The clerical regime has never volunteered to report its nuclear activities to the IAEA according to the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT); the Iranian resistance has been the first party that revealed the regime's clandestine facilities and its nuclear deception.

In this respect, Mrs. Rajavi reiterated the need for the IAEA to immediately inspect the nuclear sites recently exposed by the Iranian Resistance, so as to prevent the regime from modifying them as it has done in the past.
